2017 Term 3 Course Descriptions

The Confucius Institute Courses are held each term at the University of Canterbury. Each course runs for ten weeks. They are taught by qualified Mandarin Language Teachers or Assistants, who are recruited from China. All teachers are native speakers of Chinese. The courses are not for credit, although students have the opportunity to take 'Hanyu Shuiping Kaoshi' (HSK) if they wish to.

To register for any of these courses, please go to <http://www.ci.canterbury.ac.nz/forms/evening-courses-form.shtml>

Students should register and pay online. If you have any difficulties with this, please contact Rosa-Jane Whitcombe rosa-jane.whitcombe@canterbury.ac.nz.

Please note: course payments are not refundable for non-attendance.

For more information, please phone 03 369 4399 or email rosa-jane.whitcombe@canterbury.ac.nz.

Chinese Beginners 1

Course Description: This course focuses on developing the ability to communicate basic information in Mandarin Chinese. No previous knowledge of the language is assumed. With the assistance of Pinyin (the widely-used system for writing Chinese words with the Roman alphabet), participants will learn basic sentence structures and grammatical rules. Students will also learn to write a number of Chinese characters and acquire a vocabulary of 200 words for basic conversational use. The course is suitable for anyone interested in Chinese language and culture and, in particular, anyone contemplating travelling or working in China or any other Chinese speaking regions.

Instructor Hannah (Jinghan) Yu. Ms Yu graduated from Guangxi University with a Masters Degree in Teaching Chinese as a Second Language. She is currently a teacher at CIUC. She is a qualified Sponsored Chinese Teacher who has been selected by Hanban (the head office of the Confucius Institutes in Beijing) to teach and promote Chinese language in New Zealand.
